Building on MITâs mission of generating, disseminating, and preserving knowledge, and working with others to bring this knowledge to bear on the world's great challenges, the Center for Reflective Community Practice exists to expand access to and engagement with the knowledge developed by people in disenfranchised, low income and marginalized communities. Knowledge that resides in the experience of individuals and groups who daily face the challenges of building healthier communities represents a way of understanding the world that is critical for re-imagining the possibilities for creating a fair, just and equitable society. http://crcp.mit.edu/

We, in the Department of Urban Studies and Planning are committed to positive social change. Our vision is translated into professional education in distinct ways:

- To improve quality of life of the worldâs citizens
- To emphasize a democratic process in both private and public sectors, and acknowledge the necessity of government to ensure equality for all
- To use technology to facilitate social change
- We trust that the built environment can meet the needs of a diverse population, and give meaning to their daily lives.
